

I would petition the FCC to not enact anything that would restrict or lesssen the present Indiana Telephone Privacy Law's present restrictions.

This present law has reduced the calls we get by about 99%. A man's home should be considered as off limits to unwanted solicitations. By using the telephone as a means of gaining access to a home it is simply taking advantage of the fact that the phone will be answered because the incoming call could very possibly be an emergency or other need.

All I can say is that the present law has been a real blessing to our family to not be subjected to unwanted and unsolicited sales pitches.
